

Braiding Diversity into Justice

Braiding Diversity into Justice is an event in the Waterloo Region that connects marginalized and/or racialized young women, ages 16 to 20, to women working in law.

March 31, 2022
8:30 - 11:30 a.m.

Virtually, details to follow

To apply, please visit:
bit.ly/braidingdiversity

Special thanks to:

Braiding Diversity into Justice

What our participants said:

What our participants said:

"I learned more about women and especially women of colour and their everyday struggles and their different paths towards a career in law."

"I learned that as a woman, I can achieve a lot and that there is no direct path for law!"

"I highly enjoyed meeting so many inspirational women, all of whom have incredible stories and advice to share. I loved this program, I found it inspirational, educational and empowering."

"I feel that people with similar characteristics as me (being a person of colour, a woman, and someone coming from a family that is not financially secure) are often underrepresented in the legal profession. I would like to attend this conference to be empowered by the women who have entered a legal profession and to learn about how I can make a difference to improve our justice system."

"It is my strong belief that in order to make a lasting positive change in the world, the ones who push for these changes must be a diverse, all-encompassing group of people. We need the help of everyone and in a time when strides are being taken globally towards equality and improvement that we continue to make even greater leaps towards our goals."

Special thanks to: